“ I work part-time at the Ohio History Connection, formerly the Ohio Historical Society. In 2003 our staff photographer and I visited the Frasca home near Croton to photograph items from Jim's Civil War collections for a story in Timeline, our popular history journal then in production. I was saddened recently to learn of Jim's death. He was always a wealth of information and enthusiastic in his sharing of knowledge. He welcomed our intrusion into his home and allowed us to use his collection while demanding nothing in return. We still have the images we took of his collection items, including both paper and clothing. We have no immediate plans to publish them again but wondered if you would be willing to allow us to do that in the future if the need should arise.

Best wishes,

“ Beyond Jimmy's incalculable knowledge of federal Civil War insignia, headgear and uniforms, he also possessed that rare and God given gift to make you laugh. I could always depend upon him to make me cry with laughter and almost wet my trousers. His stories, antidotes and overall outlandish sense of humor will be sorely missed. He was one of a kind, and I am richer for my 25 year friendship with him, both professionally and personally. Rest in peace my friend.

“ Jim was a "rara avis" - a truly one-of-a-kind individual. He was smart as a whip, funny, and yes, even snarky - with as Don called it, "a biting wit". I learned buckets from him about CW artifacts, and will always be grateful that he took me under his wing and introduced me to fellow CW collectors from across the country. I will miss our long phone conversations, and his infallible ability to make me laugh with one of his witty comments.

Ellen, I am so sorry for your loss. He will be missed greatly and his loss will reverberate among his friends for years to come.

“ My close pal for over 40 years. A truly great guy in every respect , I considered him another brother. I'm going to miss his keen insight and biting wit. The collecting community has lost it's most knowledgeable member. Rest in Peace good buddy.

“ Jim was the Dean of Civil War Federal insignia, headgear and uniform collectors. His discernment was outstanding, his taste was impeccable and his willingness to share his insights was bountiful. We exchanged observations and stories for 40 years, and I will miss him immensely.

“ It is difficult trying to find all the adjectives needed to fully describe this great guy. Witty, insightful, engaging, authoritative, smiling, generous...all these just scratch the surface. I was truly blessed to have had a friendship with Jim that spanned more than four decades and my life in the world of Civil War collecting was made far richer and more enjoyable having him as a friend and unending source of knowledge. He will truly be missed by us all. Ellen, you are in our prayers.
