“ Andy was always a kind mentor to me in my career in water resources - both as an assistant professor and a government research analyst. Andy always took time to share ideas and provide encouragement. He was generous as a lead author - Andy included me as a co-author on several publications for which I was part of his project, however small. I now try to extent this generosity when I teach and include and acknowledge others for their contribution to group efforts. Thanks for your mentoring and generosity Andy.

“ Andy's death deeply saddens me. I enjoyed working with him on many proposals and many times had to convince him that the indirect cost for the university. "the tax" as he sometimes called it, wasn't such a bad thing after all. It is sad that after years of trying to beat his cancer and and times of optimism and times of suffering horrible side effects from treatments, the cancer kept the upper hand. Andy will be missed by all who worked with him and many students who benefited from his knowledge.

“ I am terribly sorry to hear of Andy's passing. From the conversations that he and I had through Facebook about horse racing as we were both members of the Churchill Racing Club he was an upstanding and very knowledgeable guy. I will miss the conversations that we had. My prayers go out to the family and friends that knew Andy. God Bless & RIP.
