“ Ben was like my other son; he and my number one hung out as kids, grew up together, were scallywags together, got each other into trouble and got each other out of trouble. They shared their highs and lows, triumphs and tragedies, hopes and dreams, struggles and joys, were side by side through the best and worst of times...tight for life. Ben was the truest and most loyal friend my son ever had; words cannot express the gratitude I have in my heart for the bond they shared. The memories are many, and the ache is deep; we have lost a part of ourselves. We are having a hard time with this sudden parting, and although none of us knows the number of our days, we know our days have been made richer by having known this rascal. May Ben's life encourage each of us to treasure one another while we can...💕 Love to the family...
