“ So many memories, particularly of our childhood. During the summer months, my brother and I would spend a week with our Aunt and Uncle on one side of Rosemount and another week with Grandma and Grandpa Coldiron on the other side. I remember washing Grandpa's car with Cheryl, helping to churn the banana ice cream, breaking green beans fresh from Grandpa's garden, going up on "the hill" and playing for hours, taking our shoes off and walking in the creek, playing Barbie dolls... Cheryl was officially my aunt, but since she was only 5 months older, she was more like a cousin. I remember several times when Grandma would buy Cheryl something in blue - a dress, a blouse, or a pair shorts and she'd buy me an identical one in red. We were very close as kids.

And, even though distance and life's moments separated us for awhile, we had reconnected in recent years and had looked forward to getting our grand kids together. Cheryl was a wonderfully kind, loving person who will be missed by everyone whose life she touched.
