He is also survived by his brother-in-law, Daniel Freeman and his wife Laurie; his sister-in-law, Marilyn and her husband, Nat DiBuduo; and his brother-in-law, Philip Freeman.

He is also survived by nieces and nephews, Heather and her husband Brian Evans, Beth and her husband Ryan Hardester, Nicole and her husband Colby Linder, Marcus DiBuduo and his wife Amy, Analise and her husband Derek Elrod, Dustin Freeman and his wife Nina, and Douglas Freeman. He is also survived by many great-nieces and nephews.

Don was born in 1944 in Fresno, California. Always studious, he excelled in school. He also excelled in many extra circular activities. He played little league baseball and stopped one step short of becoming an Eagle Scout. As a young child he also developed a passion for music and studied piano for 14 years. He also played many different instruments in his high school marching band. In his college years, he led the church choir at Easton Presbyterian Church.

In his senior year in high school he came in third in a national debate conference and decided to become a lawyer. However, during his senior year at Fresno State College (University of California at Fresno) he was asked to finish teaching a political science class for a professor who became ill. Don loved teaching so much that he decided to become a college professor instead.

Don received his PHD from The University of Wisconsin and joined the Ohio State University Political Science Department in 1970. He received tenure and won the Outstanding Teacher Award for the College of Arts & Sciences in mid-1970's. He was an active and prolific scholar.

In 1982, Don decided he wanted to work in government and took a job with then-Attorney General Bill Brown, working with his policy development team. He later was asked to head up the communications department. Don was invited back to OSU to teach an honors class on the American Presidency. Of the four living former presidents, Jimmy Carter and Gerald Ford accepted the invitation to speak to his class.

Don decided that he wanted to provide communication services as a business. He had his own company for more than 30 years, providing communication & strategic planning to a wide variety of corporate, government, and charitable organizations. One of his joys was working with the late Pat Logsdon in electing outstanding candidates for public office. Don always believed in the importance of public service.

He worked with many governors and many business entities. He also worked with the senior staff at OSU during the transition process for several incoming OSU presidents.

Don loved life, family, people, a cause to work for, conversation and good food. Don will be greatly missed by his family and friends and the dogs, Alix & Sonoma. He was a wonderful teacher and advisor to his students and colleagues.

Charitable contributions may be made to the Mid-Ohio Food Bank and Franklin County Children's Services.

“ I was very saddened to hear of Don's passing. I was able to work with him and other colleagues on a variety of projects to improve access to a high quality education. I was younger and much less experienced at the time; he was a teacher with a razor sharp wit and keen insights. I was very fortunate. My prayers and condolences go out to Sally and the family.

His innovative recommendations and insightful approaches to educational improvement benefited Ohio immeasurably! I'll especially miss his keen wit and our regular conversations. Thoughts and prayers are with Sally and family during this difficult time.

“ I was deeply saddened to hear of Don's passing. For many of us, there are often few really good friends that are both respected and enjoyable to be with. Don was one of those friends. I met Don early in my time as CEO of the Ohio Council of Behavioral Health & Family Services Providers in the 1990s. He did some excellent political and communications strategy work for us. We connected personally, and I would often visit Don at his downtown Columbus office to chat, learn, and enjoy each others company. While we both often held strong opinions and liked to talk and share, I quickly learned to spend more time listening because of the value that I attached to Don's knowledge and expertise. I will always remember Don for his thoughtfulness; commitment to having a positive impact on the well-being of others; integrity; enjoying the company of friends; and enjoyment of good food and wine. I will miss hearing your voice and sharing in your company, Don.

“ I was so very saddened to hear of Don's passing. I first met Don when he was working on project for the Ohio Department of Higher Education (then the Board of Regents) with his colleague Bob Boltz-Don referred to the team as Nuts and Bolts! Since that time, I've had many opportunities to work with Don, particularly as he was working to document the progress of the Ohio Mathematics Initiative. His work has been instrumental in the success of the initiative. My sincerest condolences to Don's family. We will miss him.

“Sally, Josh, and family, I was so saddened to learn of Don’s passing. You have my deepest sympathy. I had the privilege of interfacing with Don in several different settings over a great number of years. He was my graduate school advisor. I was his teaching assistant. He was of great assistance to me when I would later teach my own class on American politics. More recently, he helped me in his capacity as a consultant as I assisted an incoming state administration. Don was a brilliant and kind man, and a trusted advisor. I know how devoted he was to you, his family.

“Working with Don was one of the highlights of my career at the AG’s office. He embodied the words “realistic and pragmatic” when it came to politics. He always, always had a good solution for a tough political policy or decision, always was thinking 4 or 5 steps ahead when it came to the impact of those policies or decisions and never was ruffled when debating an issue. In an office dominated by lawyers, Don held his own. He could argue with the best without being intimidated or demeaning. My friend, you will be sorely missed, but never be forgotten.

“ I first got to know Don when we both worked for Attorney General Bill Brown in the early 80's. Don was a talented teacher, brilliant strategist and communicator. He also possessed an addictively upbeat personality and wicked sense of humor. He was one of the all-time great story-tellers. We became close friends over the years, both with Don and Sally. He loved his family and I know they will miss him greatly, as will all who knew him.

“ Don was a wonderful mentor. He taught me that political scientists have a role to play outside of academia. I will never forget the evening in 1981, in his living room, watching Don sign-off on my dissertation. Condolences to Sally, Josh, and the rest of the family.
