“ Dorotha Haueisen

“ Although many of us have always known her name was "Dorotha," she was always very sweet about hearing everyone call her "Aunt Dorothy." I remember the time she began a hobby of candle making (with Jack, I think). Now and then Uncle Dick and Aunt Dorothy would come up to my parents' place in Delaware, and Mom and Dorothy would sit outside in the shade, chatting for hours. Something special that I remember sharing with Aunt Dorothy was our preference for slightly burned pretzels--the ones you sometimes find in a bag--the ones that are a little darker than the usual ones. I was so happy to find that somebody else besides me enjoyed that special taste.

*Aunt Dorothy was so loving of her family, and she and Dick (Louis Richard) were always fun to be around. Although we will all miss her, we carry a little bit of her with us, for the rest of our lives.
"Sterben werd' ich um zu leben!"*
