“ You were always one of my favorite people. I didn't always understand your free spirit and zest for life but I have missed you and to find out you have died is so sad . You were my first true love and you made my heart sing in ways I did know was possible. Till we meet again Liz!

“ Well... I'm speechless...! I was looking for Liz in internet and found...her obituary..!?! I'm Jesús López Cobos's son, Jesús. I first met Liz in 1986 in Cincinnati. We were the same age. We fell in love at first sight. It was a very short summer romance but true and innocent love. I wrote her many letters for years after that and we even got to built up a special friendship but after that we loose contact. That was over 25 years ago. In 2008 she tried to contact me again and I wrote back but I never received a response... I had no idea that she was ill and now she passed away... And so young! I fell deeply sorry and very sad right now... She was a wonderful person, beautiful woman, so sweet and kind person..! I know her mother was ill too and I believe she died young too. Did she inherit the same illness? Why, o my God, must good people leave this world so young? Please, if you got any information, contact me at renzoramos@gmail.com. I'd appreciate to know more about her and her life. She was such a special person! I can't believe it...! Dearest Liz, wherever you are, I'll always love and remember you... My sincerest regret for her family and friends.

“ She was my mother and I have so many memories. The best memory was when we went to the pond near her home and we had burritos the and I tried to catch fish.

Hi Samira, so sad to hear about your mom's passing. I met her back in 1987 at Cooper Union when I was working on my Masters. She was dating Fikre Wang at the time - he's a surgeon in New Orleans now. I only met her a few times and my initial impressions were that she was a smart, well-grounded, and a genuinely nice person. Best of luck and I'm sure she is watching you from above.

“ I was a "survivor" along with Elizabeth having attended SCPA grades 4-12. Liz was incredibly talented in instrumental music and acting(we performed together in The Crucible & Imaginary Invalid). I remember Liz being incredibly intelligent(National Honor Society and member of Latin Club)and having impeccable taste in music and giving me a tutorial regarding how great The Beatles were as a band. The last time I saw Liz was at a ten year reunion in '97 in Cincinnati. Over the last two decades I knew she had been battling illness and was putting up a brave fight. My heart broke when I heard the news she had passed away...she had a sweet smile and a kind spirt that I will treasure always! My thoughts are with her daughter,Audrey and her immediate family. Godspeed dear sweet Elizabeth...it was an honor to have known you! Peace/love,Tim Barker
