“Faith and I were roommates sophomore year in college. She was the most cheerful person, and woke up humming, singing or whistling every day. She had tremendous care for everyone around her, and looked out for me always. She even took me home with her for Easter break.

I'm so many ways we were opposites, but that just made life with Faith interesting. I was forever changed for the better having known her, and I will always hear her voice in my head helping. I will always hear her laugh, and feel her heart.

“Faith was a good friend to my daughter Liz. Her son Ben and my grandson were in band together, and we enjoyed meeting up with her at band performances. She was always smiling and joyful.
