“ Fred Yeh was a wonderful and caring father, supportive neighbor, and faithful church member. He encouraged everyone to do their best and to work hard. From what I remember growing up, Fred was also one of the pack leaders of his son's Michael Indian Guide Troop in North Olmsted. The Indian Guides made this very interesting totem pole made out of potato chip cans and the Yeh's house was the only one tall enough to house it. They kept it in their house in their front entry way for years to support their son and his friends. :)
