“ I cannot say that I knew Lois Golding well, having spent time with her only on a few occasions. However, I feel like I did know her in ways that were important enough for me to hold her in high regards. Her warmth, compassion and sense of humor stood out, even when the effects of time had taken hold.

I feel comfortable saying she lived a life of "traditional" values. I saw a life spent building a foundation of stability, safety, consistency, reliability and respect for others. Hopefully we all learn from others and recognize the contributions they make to help us be a better person. Lois and Barney showed that a relationship can last for a lifetime. They showed that you can live in the same home and be comfortable. Many things in their life were familiar. Yet there was also an appreciation for learning new ways, new ideas and expanding their knowledge of the world.

Lois past on a treasure trove of positive impact to those who knew her and loved her. My sincere condolences to Elisa and Rick, our very good friends, and the rest of the family and friends of a great lady.

“ I met Lois Golding through her daughter Elisa. I interacted briefly and intermittently with Lois over the last decade but see many of her best traits reflected in her daughter and others whose lives she touched.

Mrs Golding inspired a love of nature, reading, creating and lifelong learning. During the few times I did get to visit ~ most recently this past Christmastime ~ her sense of humor, intellect and recollection of long ago camping adventures inspired great conversation. Though I met her in her golden years, I learned of a life full of the best any could hope for ~ love, kindness, compassion, connection, and adventure. She was a special person that touched countless lives in positive ways. She and her late husband Barney live on in those inspired by and connected with them.

“ Dear Golding family,
I grew up on Richards Rd. across from your mother and dad. Still all these years later I remember your mother's kindness and gentle smile. I remember your father teaching me astronomy and his passion for the Ohio Canals. I'm grateful they were our neighbors. I send my deepest sympathy and offer my prayers for Helen and for Barney. Two very special people who will always live in my memory. God Bless you all.
