

Jack Stoneburner

March 2, 1951 - April 26, 2020

pending

Tribute Wall

“ Jack Stoneburner

January 28, 2023 at 10:24 AM

“ I just found out today that Jack had passed away. He helped me so much in becoming a stronger healthier person. We lost a great person the day he died.

Jennifer Finn - September 26, 2022 at 10:54 AM

“ First, I wanna say i'm so so sorry to his family and friends. Jack really was a special person and a bright light. I just recently found out about his passing and I wanted the family to know just how much he impacted me, because I never got to tell him myself. I'm 17 and he was the first adult who had ever made me feel validated and like my thoughts and feelings were just as relevant as adults. He taught me my opinion was worth it and valid, and it's didn't matter how old I was. He defended me against my family, when no one else did. He didn't treat me like I was stupid. He impacted my life so much, and i'm so grateful to have gotten to meet him. prayers to family and friends❤️❤️❤️

maddy - December 14, 2020 at 04:56 PM

“ So sorry to just find out Jack died. What a wonderful human being he was. I am sure as a family you will all miss him. I will say many prayers for all of you.

Jeanne Dumond - September 13, 2020 at 04:05 PM

WG

“ I was a client of Jack’s for 10 years, but he was so much more than a therapist. He created the first safe place that I have ever known. He taught me more about love, trust, and God than most people will ever know. He dove into the depths of my anguish time and again and declared me the victor, despite what it took out of him. True to form, he was counseling me 2 weeks before he died. There will never be another Jack

Wendy George - July 22, 2020 at 09:44 AM

SR

“ I knew Jack professionally, was a client of his back in his earliest years, before he went into private practice, then went back even though there was sometimes over a decade between appointments. Prior to my first session with Jack, I wanted to stay away from all counselors, having had two recent bad experiences, and Jack convinced me otherwise. He was the first person to encourage me to go into the same field, which I later did. He had a gift, and it benefited so many. With his loss, the world just became a sadder place. --Sue Robinson

Sue Robinson - May 01, 2020 at 01:41 PM

BB

I am so sorry to hear of his passing. I’m a vet with ptsd. We had a lot of good talks. Will miss him.

bob boughton - May 11, 2020 at 08:46 PM

MA

Jack was the first therapist I ever saw. As a victim of an abusive father, and then an abusive husband, Jack helped me to realize how I was treated by them had little to do with me and helped me regain my self esteem. While I was in therapy with him, I developed the courage to return to OSU to finish my degree--something I never would have done without his help and encouragement. I was stunned when he came to my graduation, yet I so touched and grateful that he did. He was a very special person, and I am saddened that he will not be there for people like me who need his wisdom and compassion to heal an abusive past and go on to develop a happy and fulfilling life. The world has lost a wonderful, caring and empathetic man. . My condolences to his family. I was extremely fortunate to know him and to be a client. I will always remember his compassion.

Maggie - May 18, 2022 at 07:10 PM

VA

I was thinking about Jack this morning (not knowing he had passed), realizing I needed to talk to someone to help me deal with the grief of my brother's passing (December 23, 2021). I burst into tears learning he had passed and that I never got the chance to say goodbye or tell him how much of an impact he made on my life, my family's life, my son's life. I've known Jack since I was 10 years old (I'm 51 now). Jack helped my family through a divorce in the 80's, for years through my teens and into adulthood, as well as my own divorce in 2015. Jack had a game we played the "Talking, Feeling, Doing" game as my family worked through the stress of my parents divorce. Jack was always there for us, the voice of reason, the advocate for a child's well being, the calm, soothing presence that was needed in times of despair. He was a beacon of hope for my family, for so many....there will never be another Jack. The world truly lost a special man. My condolences (from my family too) to his family. Like many others have said, I am truly blessed and fortunate to have known him, been counseled by him, and learn so many life lessons from him that I still work to apply today. Thank you Jack for everything you did for my family and I the past 41 years. You will be dearly missed. - Veronica

Veronica Asbury - August 04, 2022 at 08:24 AM