“ There will never be an adequate way to describe the impact that Jerry had on the lives he touched. He was my oldest friend. My dearest friend. He stood beside me at my wedding and held my children when they were infants. His love of music and art opened my eyes to so many experiences I never would have had without knowing him. He instilled the excitement of discovering a new artist or musician into the people he shared it with. To know that I will never again in this life be able to sit at a table with him and weave a story of adventure and intrigue together is soul-crushing. I will always love you. You will always be in my heart and never far from my thoughts.
