“ Dear Larry and Phil,
My thoughts are with you this day. So many years have passed since I last saw you, and I have missed our contacts. God bless you for your kindnesses to Kay and Dick.

We three shared so many great adventures. They were so very dear to me. Probably our favorite story would be what happened one of the times I visited them in Florida. There were all kinds of tornado warnings - and I stayed awake watching the news. They went to bed. All night long I thought - if necessary I would wake them and we would all get in the shower - but I would grab my flute and Dick's clarinet and keep them with us. Fortunately, the tornado went north of us. But they had many good laughs with me, envisioning us huddled in our nightwear in the shower with our instruments!

They were such wonderful people, and Kay welcomed me always with such love.

I miss our times together. I'm sure hundreds are reading of Kay's death with sadness.

Love to all,
Jan Ebert
