“ To the French family, I am very sorry for your loss. May the love and times you have shared comfort you In the spand of time things change. With the passing of time we become our parents and they now take on the role we've had. As children we gaze with love into their eyes, they help you put on a coat you see their love, or tie your shoes Now as the roles have changed and time has passed, the love they have share remain forever with us, even now.
