“ Myra was my Freshman Theory teacher in the fall of 1957 at Texas Wesleyan University (then College) in Ft. Worth, Texas. I was a piano major, and I loved her class. She was a wonderful teacher; she made theory interesting to me for the first time ever! I had no idea she was only ten years my senior. I wish I had known how to contact her later and been able to express my appreciation for her impact on my life. Also, I was always amazed and enchanted with her brilliant piano playing. I would love to share with her that I have been a church staff pianist for most of my life, including 30+ years continuing to the present at a Presbyterian church. I am now 81 years old, and oh, how I wish I could have visited with Myra in our later years. Hopefully I can have this opportunity to share with her on the other side of this life.
