“ My favorite memories are of the Agler Road house. We had wonderful family gatherings at Aunt Poe and Uncle Eddies house. We had a pot luck picnic, played basketball, yard darts, horseshoes and the guys even flew radio control airplanes. This was one of the events in my young life that I looked forward to very much. i liked to listen to Uncle Eddy and my dad Charlie Wilson talk about the old days and some of the shenanigans they pulled. Here is my favorite as told to me by my dad, Charlie Wilson, "Grandfather Harold Rieder always drove his car with his horn, Eddy and Charlie decided to pull a prank on Harold they disconnected Harold's horn. Later that day Harold came out got in his car and started to back out of the driveway as always when he got to the street he would blow the horn, needless to say the horn didn't work, so Harold pulled the car back in the driveway and refused to drive the car." Without Harold knowing Eddy and Charlie fixed the horn after having a big laugh. I really miss the old days and being with my family. They all brought so much to my life. To Paul and to everyone who loved Eddy I wish you comfort in the memories that you shared with Eddy they will get you through.

“ God Bless/RIP. A heartfelt Thank YOU, Paul for your service in WWII. The USA would NOT be as it is today. I treasure the freedoms for which YOU fought. And Semper Fi.

“ Grandpa, we will miss you so much! That “house on the hill” was the most stable house we had growing up. We loved being whisked away by you and grandma to spend the night with you, and get spoiled. As we got older, your stories were my favorite part of seeing you. My favorite story was one you told me about a brave nurse you remembered in a field hospital in Belgium in WW2. You said bombs were going off, and GI’s were running for cover. You remembered clearly a nurse that sat there with a light bulb swaying back and forth, and her not batting an eyelash as she was overlooking her patients. You told me that to tell me how proud you were of my career choice, and I will never forget that. I love you so much.
