“ Hello. I wanted to pass on my condolences to the Morris family. I first met Dick 20 years ago or more when I showed up at a high-school baseball game at Dublin Coffman to serve as official scorer for a tournament game and quickly learned that such duties fell to the gruff fellow at the table at the far end of the home dugout, Dick. We quickly got past that when we started talking about his past and discovered that he, like my own father, was a Marine as well as a longtime "telephone man." From then on, I sought out Dick whenever I showed up at Coffman for a baseball game, and greatly enjoyed the time I spent with him. I am saddened to hear of his passing, and wish his family much peace. Take care. Ray Stein, sports editor, The Dispatch.
