“ Robert was a great help to me in reconstructing the life of my father who lived with the Crossman family after my father's mother died during the early 1930's. The benevolence of the Crossman family no doubt saved his life. Robert's brother Wally was an eighth grade classmate of my dad's. I spoke to Robert many times and we corresponded over emails. He was the same age as my mother. He cared for his mother for many years. I will always be indebted to Robert for the time he spent telling me his stories and answering all my questions. He was a good person. The Crossman's were a strong family. They had a tenacious and fighting spirit which allowed them to survive some tough times during the depression and World War II and ultimately to succeed in life. Even during the toughest of times they had the generosity of spirit to help others in need. God bless the Crossman family. My sympathies for you loss.
