“ I met Jim years ago, he has always been a friend and mentor to me. I was his local Bar Keep, as Jim would say, for many years before I retired from the industry. His stories and jokes were priceless and so intriguing to hear. Always had something funny to start a conversation! The one thing that I will never forget is him always calling the beverage-bar napkins, a doily. He would said Mr. Matthew where my doily! I will also never forget him looking at me and saying and reciting " A Clean Bar is a Happy Bar " Jim and I had amazing conversations over those years I learned a great deal about him and his family. I wholeheartedly had the upmost respect for Jim. He was a great influence to me, mentor and a fun genuine person to be around. Funny as all get out for sure! I remember him telling me about his band days and when he used to play the saxophone, travelling to play gigs. I watched him play at a local bar one time around the corner from where he lived. He was spot on, smiling and having a blast in that moment. He will deeply and truly be missed. My sincere condolences and sympathy to his family. I will miss you my friend, peace and grace Jim.

“ While I only knew Jim for about the last 5 years or so from playing guitar at Vittoria's, Jim would come in from time to time with old stories of Camp Drum and his playing the saxophone in the early Columbus band days. He usually had a joke to share and a hard belly laugh. A few months ago he gave me an Army hat, as I am a vet. It meant a lot to me then and even more now. Rest In Peace Jim and thank you for your friendship with us guys and gals at Vittoria's.

“ I have known Jim for only about 5 years. In that time he gradually grew on me until I realized I was in the presence of someone very special. Quirks?, to say the least. Lost in time? Just look at the hair and his house. Funny? Half the time I had to think twice just to understand the humor, then I would laugh for a couple of days over just how stupid the joke was. He definitely was an addition to my special cast of characters I have collected over my life. I will miss him. A couple or three times in the early morning I drove him to the hospital for some heart tests. By the time I parked and followed him in he had already left a trail of people laughing. All I had to do was follow the old ladies that were laughing just to find him. He was a trip. Rest easy my friend. Oh, some day I will hold you to your offer to teach me how to drive a tank.

“ I knew him as Warren in school - could never get used to calling him Jim or Jimmy at class reunions. We had lots of good times in school, homerooms, and GHHS class reunions. What a crazy sense of humor he had! I would have enjoyed hearing him play sax; my husband is also a great sax player.

May he rest in peace. My condolences to his family; he will be missed.

“ Jimmy was already a legend by the time I started my time at the City Prosecutors Office. Full of wit and wisdom. He was the go to guy for any questions a new Prosecutor might have. Always ready to help, and always ready to laugh at the sometimes absurd situations we encountered. One of a kind. He will be missed.

“ We were law school classmates. I always knew him as Jim. At the end of our first year, he missed a Contracts class, then asked me, "What did I miss?" Me: "Prof. Clovis says this is going to be on the final exam." As a result, every time i saw him, he thanked me for getting him through law school. I really didn't, but that was our joke between us. I'm really going to miss that guy. I'm sure he was as great an uncle and relative as he was a friend.

“ Jimmy was an outstanding lawyer and a true gentleman. Witty, smart, and always on the go. Who remembers him in Judge Golden's courtroom? W. ruled the City Attorneys Office along with Pollitt, Beck, Matuska and the Gar. Those were the days. Rest in peace Jim. You've earned it and then some.

“ I had the pleasure of working with Jim in the Columbus City Attorney's Office. Jim was a Senior Attorney when I started my career 25 years ago. His mentorship, friendship, humor, and guidance were a blessing. He was a terrific attorney and an even better man. May his memory be for a blessing.

I had the pleasure of having Jim as my mentor when I was an intern and later a prosecutor in the city prosecutor's office. He was a great trial lawyer and a great prosecutor and teacher. Not to mention he was very compassionate and a ton of fun to hang out with. Rest peacefully my friend. Judge Jeff Brown.

“ I knew him as Warren. We were good friends in high school. I went to undergraduate school at Denison over in Granville and frequently came to Columbus and stayed with him. We spent hours discussing the Who's Tommy. I remember him as a great sax player. He was also a groomsman in my wedding. Dave Chesler
